

At What Point Should A Rape Be Stopped?

In the case of a rape, how long should it take before say, a local law enforcement officer, or perhaps a sheriff, reacts in coming to the aid of the victim? Should the officer wait until the rape has been fully completed, documented, and proven to be a rape in one of today's court system paperwork verification processes? Or should the officer simply respond if the victim is genuinely being violated and is screaming out for help?

Is it their duty to wait until the victim has drawn their last breath? Should they return the victim to the rapist over and over at the rapist's request in order that the rape can continue? Well, they do.

I'm talking about a systemic rape of "We the People" through mass fraud. Growing numbers in this nation are waking up and crying out for justice, trying to return themselves to a natural born status under our nation's original, never eradicated common law, and the law enforcement side has often been found to have ignored the cries of those people, often as we said, even physically abducting and returning the victim to the political rapist until he or she has either expired or can't "pay their dues" under their fraudulent (unconstitutional, thereby criminal) system of rape any longer.

When a man or woman has discovered the fraud being perpetrated against them in any number of the phony strawman scenarios being deceptively played out on us today, why is it that the law enforcement officer or the sheriff in any locality or county will (without seeking to see who the real criminal is) just automatically act on behalf of the corporate "boss" rather than investigate the victim's claims in an honest defense of those who are rightfully claiming their true sovereign status as one of "We the People"?

Simply put: Why is it that the rape victim is cruelly expected to figure out how to get out of the grasp of the rapist? He or she is expected to dot every "i" and cross every "t" of the rapist's unconstitutional paperwork scheme under the criminal's fraudulent system, before they can be released from further harm, and even then, only if the (also conspiring) judge is in a good mood and feeling benevolent that day. Have we all gone mad to accept this "ignorance of the law" as "lawful behavior"?

Should our sovereignty-awakening brethren have to be endlessly returned to these global thugs for continued raping of our property, rights, freedoms, and liberties? Shouldn't at least the crime itself be stopped until it can be proven that the action in question was lawfully contracted, that is, with wet-ink signatures of all parties under each side's fully-disclosed assent, etc?

Why is it that we seem to have such difficulty getting the attention of our enforcement arm to then see this unbelievable rape being perpetrated on us by a completely wicked, criminal network of politicians, attorneys and judges? ...why is that?

Have they lost their heart for justice? Are that many law enforcement neighbors of ours attracted to their jobs by motivators that were less noble than to humbly be the protectors of "We the People" as they took an oath to be? ...or is it just an honest lack of education and investigation on their part? (I would hate to think it'd be money related, agreed?)

Whatever the case, none of us are going to start winning the battle against this global tyranny if we don't start at the very first one who is responsible for this mass onslaught of wickedness upon us—which is ourselves.

That's right, we are ALL responsible in re-educating ourselves to this evil, but above and beyond that, we are responsible to the Creator who gave us this stewardship responsibility and thereby responsible to our neighbors, doing so for them as we would have them do for us. We all need to return to a respect for Father's power and authority over us, in order that those "unalienable rights" might stay intact by His mercies. Help stop the rape of "We the People" ...repent! Please note that in our Creator's eyes: Every average man or woman who repents, does a lot more good than an entire army of tireless activist "patriots" who won't. ...and that includes those in law enforcement (that many of us old-timers want to look up to again).
