

---

WWJD?

1 message

---

Dwaine <dwaine@bcmin.us>
To: Dwaine <dwaine@bcmin.us>

Sun, Apr 25, 2021 at 9:57 PM

A thought to ask one's self:

What if Yeshua had an apostle that, after Yeshua had walked away having preached against yokes to a wicked world, had quietly told those in attendance, "Don't worry about what He just said. He's too serious. I'm not following all of that. We're gonna need Caesar to take care of us."

What do you suppose hearing that would do to Yeshua's heart, coming from one He had put His trust in?

And what would that do to the faith of the crowd that Yeshua had tried so hard to bring to a trust in the Father?

...and is that even a wise choice to begin with after all we see Caesar doing to us today?

But many are doing just that, prostrating themselves as Yeshua's apostles but vocally downplaying Yeshua's sent message to come out of a criminal world to trust in the care of a righteous God.

So, as they say:

"What would [Jesus] do?"

Any replies?